

The devastation in some parts of the Gulf Coast is nearly total. The loss of life is beyond our comprehension.

Through this crisis, people of all faiths are coming together to aid those they have never met. Many are opening their hearts, their minds and their doors to feed, clothe, and give shelter. When we work together for the good of all, we achieve our best, we heal our broken community and we restore hope.

At this time of great loss, let us become a hopeful, compassionate community, now and for the long-term future. Give through whatever means you choose. Volunteer. Be the hope.

Be the hope.

Open hearts. Open minds. Open doors.
